Dear Richard,

I really don't know how to begin. There's so much I could say and then again I really shouldn't say at all. I've really enjoyed knowing you although we've sure had our share of pugnacity. (Ask Mrs. A about that word.) I'm sorry about your bad disappointments. I just don't believe it would have worked because of our clashing personalities. I enjoyed being in your English and Biology classes. Maybe we will be in some together next year. (By the way, that "some" in the last sentence refers to classes). I'm sure we'll be seeing a lot of each other this summer at the pool. Did you get that pun? Especially if you wear your Targan ^{sock}. I hope your Mom doesn't read this. Hi Mrs. Brown, I'm really not bad; ask Richie. Remember that house over near the club that had the basement in it and you said you were gonna buy it for us? That's Mrs. A's. Guess what I just thought of! The Young Rascals are coming the 21st. In 3 more days I'll be sweet 16. I'm gonna take up a whole page if it kills me. I rode a mini bike yesterday. It was Ginn's, and oh, so much fun! You know, my pet peeve is people who start nasty rumors. Ask Steve about that. On second thought, you'd probably say "I wouldn't waste my time". Sometimes I wonder. About what? About everything. I hope your combo succeeds. Just control the volume man or you'll lose customers. I went on a diet yesterday. I exercised, ran, didn't eat, and I lost 2 pounds and some of my Yummy. Yummy, yummy, yummy, I got love in my Yummy. Excuse my writing but that's the way it is all the time. In summary you're an alright guy and I hope you'll be at the pool some. You know we have lots of good picnic tables out there. Love,

Bucky Farabee

P. S. Please quit saying bad things about me.

It's a red hot daisy. Daisies don't tell.

Do you remember yesterday? Your acceptance into college, your Junior-Senior, your class party? Do you remember yesterday? Do you remember the little things of yesterday that made you so happy? Come. Remember them with us and hold on to these memories. We are growing, and these memories may not come again. Come back to your childhood. Remember dolls, slides, skates? Remember lying in the grass, gazing at a sky bursting with blue and white, with nothing to do but think about the clouds? Life was simple then, and beautiful. We are older, perhaps wiser, perhaps not. Remember when the hardest book you read was Alice and Jerry? Remember changing classes for the first time in Junior High? And remember your years in high school? For some of us they are almost gone. This last year will always hold happy memories for us. The shared memories of a championship football team, a great basketball team, the Cellar. And the personal memories of friends and classmates. We have tried to capture these memories for you. So, come. Let us go back to yesterday. Let us find those memories that made us so happy. Let's think about the clouds as we did . . . when we were young.

COACH PRESNELL A. MULL

"Thou wert my guide, philosopher, and friend."

—ALEXANDER POPE

For his devoted guidance and quiet patience the 1968 LEXICON Staff is honored to dedicate this annual to our beloved coach

MR. PRESNELL A. MULL

MR. C. E. WIKE
Principal

Often the student body does not fully realize all the time, energy, and sacrifice that go with the job of principal. Through his willingness and steady efforts to promote Lexington Senior High School, Mr. Wike has won the lasting admiration and friendship of the faculty and of the student body.

MR. R. JACK DAVIS
Superintendent

In his first year as Superintendent, Mr. Davis has proven himself to be very worthy of this demanding job. His participation in pep rallies, his concern for the individual student, and his interest in every phase of student activity have made him a well-known and liked member of our school system.

DR. DAN TODD

Dr. Todd, as Assistant Superintendent, has had a big responsibility this year. The faculty jokingly blamed him and accreditation for their "syllabitis," but they realized that he was a major factor in the accomplishment of work done in this and other areas.

MRS. EDITH BROWN

The job of secretary is certainly one of the most demanding jobs in the school. It involves much more than most students realize. Mrs. Brown's hard work and cheerfulness throughout the year have won her the friendship of the students of Lexington Senior High.

Fair or stormy weather.
Loyal we pledge the faith, and the love enduring,

Inspiration sending;
Thy radiant spirit shining ever near us.

Classes

A child born into the world, sheltered by his parents, guarded from reality. Mother Goose Rhymes and fairy tales—all very real. Never-Never land just around the corner. A dream for a world. A child born into the world—a free, original child. Our first year in school began with this simplicity, but soon grew complex. From Sally and Tom to Macbeth. Each class was a stepping stone to our higher and more complex education. Our class was the center of our activity. Friends, the same age, interested in the same things. Our sophomore class party, our Junior-Senior, and finally, our graduation—all these sculptured our class into the statue that it is. Let us go back with our class to the time when the world was ours to enjoy, to the time when we were young. . . .

Clubs

The Secret Spy Club of Pine Street, the Car Club of Drag Street. Remember the clubs of our childhood? We joined our school clubs with the same feeling of fun. And there was fun, but there was more than that. There were projects—bake sales, car washes, and ground clean-ups. There was responsibility — perhaps our first meeting with it and the adult world. Clubs were a part of our growth. When we left them, we were older. We got into the habit of activity. We could not be content with gazing at clouds. We had to be moving, working. The adult world crowded in on us. We are tomorrow's world. No time for yesterday. The world is our responsibility.

Organizations

"A vote for Smith is a vote for you." Slogans and posters scream at us on the walls. Our first encounter with politics came with our school elections. Politics—the progress of the student body, the fate of the world. Now the change is complete. There is no separation between our world and the adult world. The adult world is ours. No matter what part we played, candidate or voter, our school elections helped complete this change. In a few short years, we will decide the fate of our world. We are ready now. The world is ours to command.

Student Council

The student council is an integral institution of the student body at LSHS. Its purpose is twofold: to encourage student leadership and to promote a pleasant atmosphere between students and faculty.

The student government is responsible for preparing and publishing a student handbook, assisting with orientation programs for new students, planning and arranging for College Night, opening and closing the Student Center, supervising fire drills, conducting a Christmas cheer campaign, and informing the student body by use of the public address system and bulletin boards.

The entire student government is composed of the Executive Student Council, Student Council, House of Representatives, and Club Council.

Debate and Public Speaking

The current public speaking program, coached by Mrs. Helen Aycock and Miss Nancy Bell, has reached an admirable peak in competition. The students are eligible to enter the following contests of public speaking: American Legion Speaking Contest, World Peace Speaking Contest, Optimist Oratorical Contest, the Fine Arts Festival, and the Wake Forest Speech Festival. In debating, the varsity teams predicted a victorious year. The affirmative Varsity team attained a laudable record at Wake Forest University. The negative Varsity team advanced to the District Tournament in the N. C. Debating Union competition.

KRASS

Krass Wangrangsimakul, sponsored by the American Field Service, joined our Senior class during the school year 1967-68. He came from Thailand and has made his home with the family of Hank Jewett. His bright smile and friendly disposition have been a valuable asset to the school. Neither miles nor years will dim our memory of him.

Features

Gone is the snaggle-toothed, pig-tailed, tom-boy girl of yesterday. But in her place, stands a lovely and refined young lady. And as she rides in parades, walks across the stage, or waves to her big and little admirers, the little girl returns. Excitement fills her! She is the queen she dreamed about when she was younger. The moment comes and goes, but the memory stays forever. A girl rarely forgets her day as a queen. And the memory helps build confidence for the day when the world becomes her stage.

Sports

It is not easy to see in our fine athletes the clumsy little boys they once were. Little boys with big dreams. Dreams which were realized this year. Big orange and blue letters they had admired so long—finally theirs. A championship football team—a dream come true. A chance to compete in sports where determination, not size, counts. But these dreams were now tempered with reality. Hard work, pain, sacrifice. But it was worth it. And the biggest prize of all was the realization that they were men. Now the whole world is their arena, and their game is about to start.

The clouds have now blown away. The air has grown colder, stiffer. Yesterday is gone, and today is leaving fast.

It is refreshing to look back on the days when we were young, the sand-box society of cares no bigger than an ice cream cone dropped in the dirt or a box of crayons melted in the sun, the days when our hardest task was figuring out the mysteries on "Howdy Doody." These are the experiences which have shaped our lives, and we have tried to capture their spirit for you in these pages.

But now the time for reminiscing has passed. The world we used to know, a brief glimpse of the past, is all behind us now. The world we do not know, the world we do not understand, is all ahead of us. In the years to come, our past will be inadequate to lean upon, and our future will not reveal itself to us. To falter and sink into a numbered and tagged world will be easy. To rise and stand upon the shoulders of the failures will be difficult. The choice is ours.

This year has influenced that choice which we will have to make. A year is such a complex unit that we cannot preserve all of it. The tangibles, the events, the victories which we all have shared can be recorded in words and pictures. But the intangibles, the personal victories and defeats, cannot be placed in print. They can only be kept in the minds and hearts of those who experienced them.

The memories of when we were young must, for the most part, be kept in our minds and hearts. Such memories must now take a back seat to what lies ahead. In the year recorded herein, each of us has made a major step toward the future. We present the 1968 LEXICON in the hope that we will continue our steps forward, while still remembering . . . when we were young.

...and Very Happy.

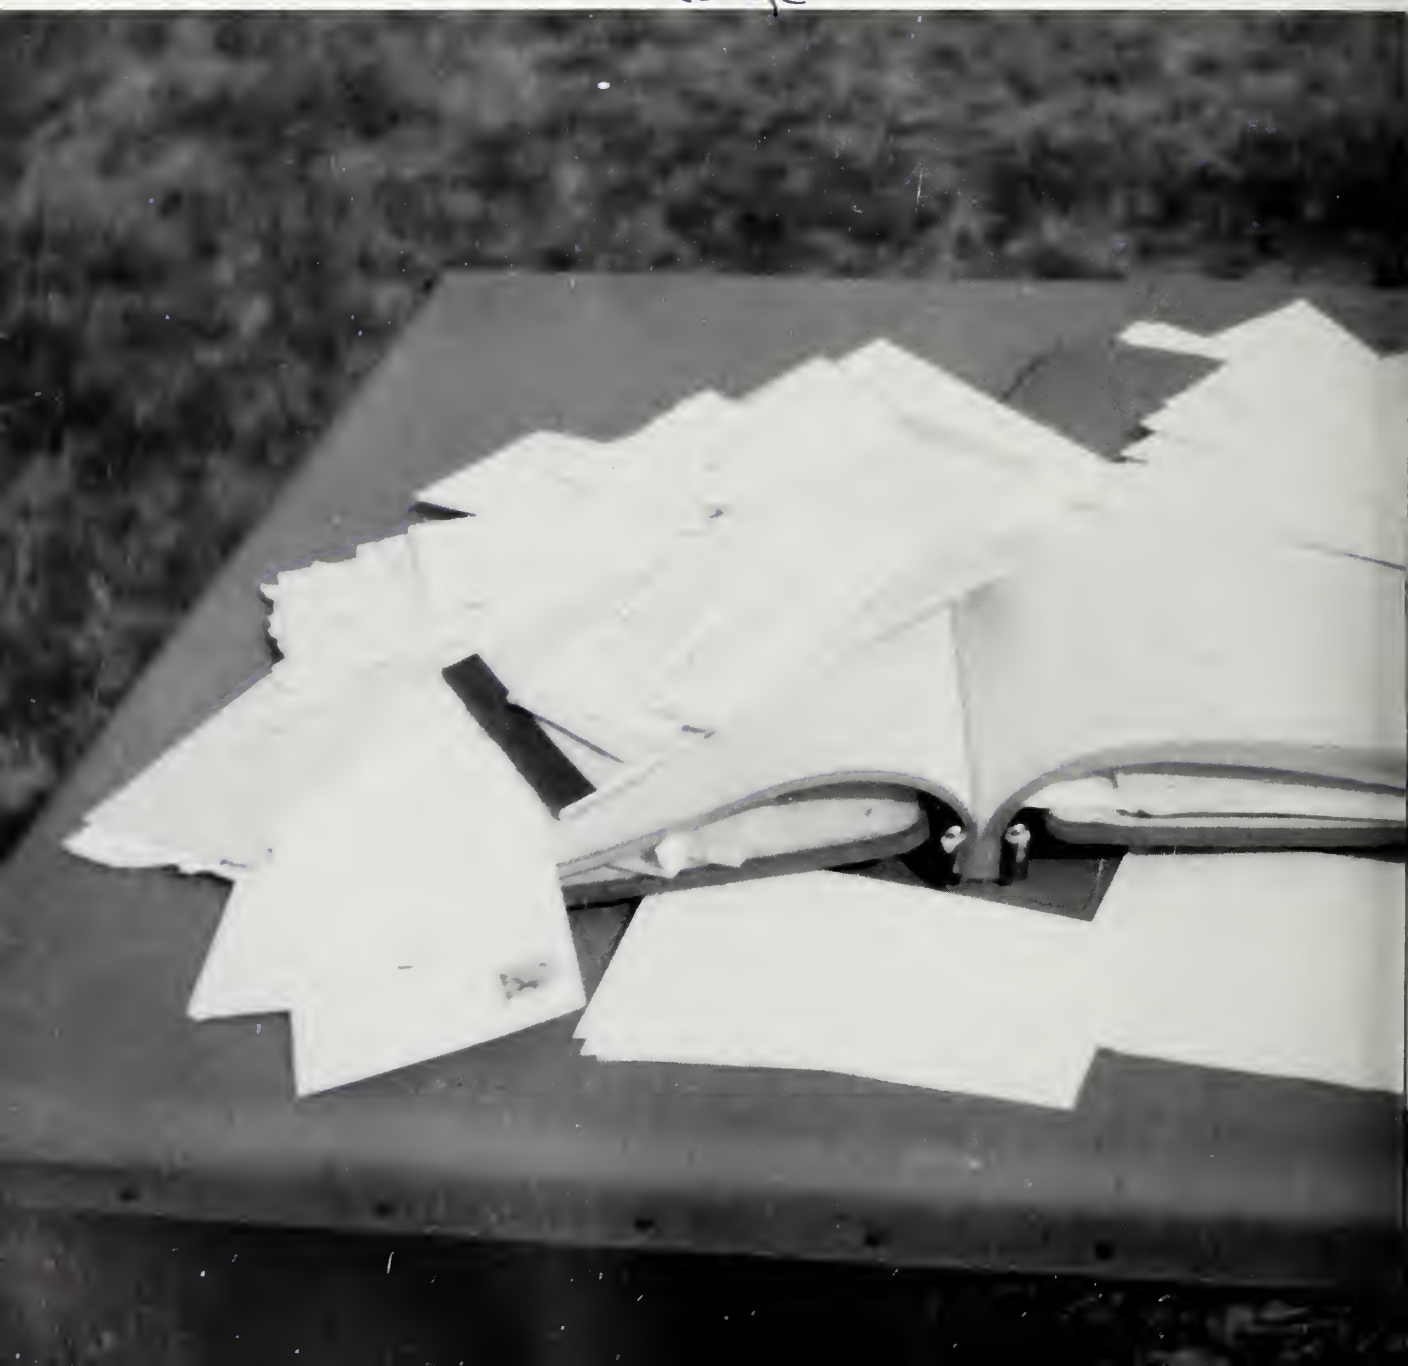

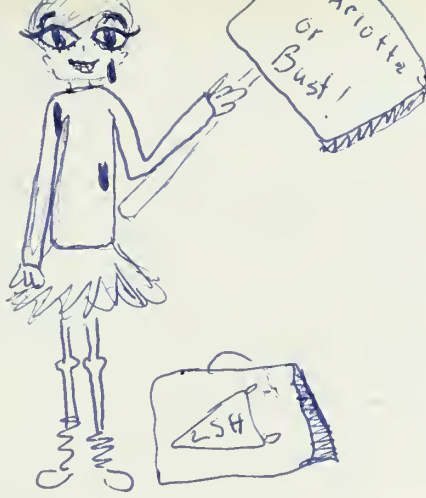

Richard,

I'll never forget my last year at LSH, and I'll never forget a really great friend that you have been! When I think back over the good and ~~stupid~~ ⁱⁿ times we've had... I want to cry. Richard Brown, if you don't write to me and come and see me I'll swear I'll come haunt you! Have a great summer and Best of Luck to a guy who doesn't need it... but sure deserves it!!

New Yea,
Raige

The world of business. A precise, exacting world. The time is near for us to enter this world. Many of us are ready, many not. The world of business seems too cold, too greedy. But our ad section shows the generosity of our merchants. Those who bought ads did not do so solely for advertising. We often do not even read the ads. Instead, we scar and mutilate them with the names and scribbblings of our friends. But the LEXICON is dependent on these ads. Without them, this book would not exist. The staff sincerely thanks the merchants of Lexington for giving so generously to the LEXICON.

Richard,

I firmly believe that under the consequences of the Manhattan Project we will not do anything in the order of a combo. But, firmly understanding that the years will be shortened somewhat in the next few months maybe we can work it out. When ^{Compliments of} the lowly tide falls upon utter bedlam I'll be there waiting in the hearts and minds of the masses. Fear not, for I am with you always.

Richard,
although a few things stood in our way this year I really have enjoyed being in Biology with you.
I'll always remember scratching your back, your witty remarks and your tempting questions.
I ~~do~~ think you are ~~really~~ really the nicest boy I have met this year. You always seem to understand all my problems and go along with me with I'm in a bad mood. You added a lot to chores, when you were here, and I'll always remember it. I'll always remember the frog, grasshopper, & worm we dissected and joked about. Biology would have really been a drag if it wasn't for you. Try not to flirt too much this summer because I'll get very jealous.
because I still have a mad crush on you. Maybe next year we can ^{make} a better go of it. I do so hope I get into your classes next year (maybe even in chemistry, so we can spill the chemicals). Be good and try to remember me. You'll always remain in my mind and heart. I'll send you some post cards this summer and I might even write you.

P.S. Excuse the writing
Please
Love
Doris
